5 THINGS TO LOOK FOR WHEN HIRING MUSICIANS TO WORK ON YOUR MUSIC!

Want to find the best kind of people to work with on your project?

Look for these 5 features and make your music making enjoyable!

LIKEABLE CHARACTER

This may seem like an obvious feature to look for, but it is one that is hugely important. You want to have people that you can vibe with and bounce ideas off of without judgement. You will spend 80% of your time hanging out and waiting, either for a live performance or recording, so finding people who you can laugh and share a drink with will go a long way in having an enjoyable experience being in a band.

KEEPS EQUIPMENT MAINTAINED

Having equipment that is clean and maintained, is a good indicator that your fellow musician takes their craft seriously. Having well maintained gear will also save time when setting up and help remove any issues you may come across if the musician has dying preamps, dead strings, dirty guitar pots.

RELIABLE AND ON TIME

This is a great feature to have in any industry. Could you imagine any high level job, putting up with late employees? Being available and on time will go along way in building trust and respect among your band mates and will help in creating better music!

LEAVES THEIR EGO AT THE DOOR

When making/recording music, the only thing that matters is the song. What isn't important is allowing someones ego to get in the way of making music. Everyone should be pulling in the same direction and serving the song, not serving the need to inflate their ego by over playing, unnecessary solos, drum fills or bass fills.

DRIVE AND DETERMINATION

Drive and determination are two features that will go along way when writing, recording and performing music. I'd rather be with a musician who wants to be there, focused and prepared but may not have the best chops, then hire someone who thinks they're the best and wants to be somewhere else.
